By far the largest denomination in the state today is the Roman Catholic. The Irish who came to Maine in the middle of the 19th religion BOOK SALE with them, but it was not until the large French-Canadian immigration after the Civil War that Roman Catholicism achieved the numbers that distinguishes it today. York pointed to the lesser denominations such as the Shakers who have made unique contributions to Maine life. The new evangelical religions, he added, have given new life to Maine

WBZ-TV FILMING

WBZ-TV, Channel 4, Boston, is planning a special evening news-cast to be aired within the next few weeks, concerning problems facing Maine clothespin manufacturers, who have recently express-ed concern for the future of their companies. The U. S. clothespin market is presently being flooded by less expansive rise investment by less expensive pins imported from various Communist countries. A television crew was scheduled to be at the Penley Clothespin Factory in West Paris this Thursday morning to film a segment to be used in the broadcast.

After the heat of the last few days even a thundershower was a welcome relief. Today I have reached the half century mark. When I was a girl in East Stoneham they used to have a church group that met once a week at different houses to sew, knit, cro-chet or whatever for the church. One day a woman was there, who was telling how she had just turned 50, and said that she spent most of the day crying. I have been crying this morning but not because of ing this morning but not because of my age but because I have reached the age where they are tears of happiness. My boys were all with as yesterday but Wilfred and he wanted to talk with his mother. Frank's mother, Thirza Gibson, his sister, Bobby, and her husband, Eddie, were here Saturday night from Hampton Falls, N. H. How wonderful is a talk with a friend or even just a smile!

Each new day will bring us joys family at Rangeley, Saturday algernoon and evening.

Greenwood City — - Mrs. Colista Morgan. Corres. -

It started with the old worn grindstone one day when my husband said, "I must grind my scythe today and do some hand mowing." I remember when such a grind-stone with rusty iron crank was whirled by my brothers and even I had a turn at the same, All who have moved with a scythe and snath know now the mower is fussy about getting a razor-sharp edge.

There was a time when the lush meadows were cut by men in this way. Today, there are few who know how. But my husband still uses one for clipping around rocks, along brooks, walls, fences, gardens and here at home. It is a real art requiring natural skill in addition to training and practice.

Today, whirling gears furnish power for mowing machines. So the machines have been at work and the monotone song of the tractor with its various types of machines have been busy while their echoes float across the meadows or down from the upper

One afternoon I went up the Bulldozer Road to see them; the tedder, rake, and baler. While waiting, I sat on the old cellar wall with my camera in my hand.

It wasn't long before the "swamp angel's "ee-o-lee" with its ethereal quality which sets the thrush apart from all others, came distinctly from a tree nearby. I listened and watched. Occasionaly it changed position, curious about a pest to the farmer.

Barn swallows swooped and wheeled over the fields while the catbird scolded from a hedge arlistened and watched. Occasionaly it changed position, curious about my presence. Then it flew into thicker branches where its song seemed to harmonize with the sounds of the forest and the whispering breeze; his voice, rich and powerful. "A-olee", a vocal expression with melody so pure that one can not imitate or describe it. Over and over his voice would wind curiosity but I'm very fond of him because he talks to me.,

Across the road and beyond the buildings, the cows gathered beneath the trees to wait for the sun to lower before grazing again.

WESTERN MAINE TRANSPORTATION SERVICE AIMS AT EXPANDED SERVICE

On Thursday, July 6, Chamberof Commerce representatives Don. Bennett and Sonny Blake met with the administrator and Rumford dispatcher of the Western Maine Transportation Service to. discuss possibilities for betterpublic transportation in the Beth-el area. WMTS hopes for a favorable Public Utilities Commission ruling this summer which will allow for their expansion on a fere collection basis in this area. WMTS already provides one day a week service for elderly and low income passengers from Bethel to Rumford and Norway/South

Paris on alternating Tuesdays. One point of interest learned in the meeting on July 6 is that by connecting with the daily Blue Line bus service between Rumford and Lewiston, WMTS passengers from the Bethel area can travel to Lewiston on Tuesdays for such things as medical ap-pointments and short periods of shopping. WMTS provides shuttle transportation in Lewiston between the Blue Line terminal and nearby clinics.

If the PUC determines that Western Maine Transportation can operate locally on a fare collection basis, it will mean that Bethel area businesses and vacation attractions can arrange for local charters and weekend service as well as more frequent service from Bethel to Lewiston via Rumford using the Blue Line and WMTS. As an additional benefit there is also the possibility that more jobs could be created on weekends for those who are already qualified school bus drivers. These additional jobs would be possible through leasing WMTS equipment for operation in the Bethel area. As a result of the initial discussion with WMTS, the Chamber of Commerce plans to concentrate its attention on setting up an information circular with details on how travelers can get from the Portland Jetport and the Lewiston-Auprojects depend on WMTS obtaining an expanded authority; there-

Ads and Disclosure Rule

The truth-in-lending law became effective July 1, 1969. It's also known as the disclosure rule. It requires lenders to give customers a plain statement of the credit charges involved in

One area where it has helped to clear possible misunderstand-ings is in real estate ads. Remember when ads used to read like this: "FOR SALE - 3-bed-room home in fine location, only $22,000 with $3,000 down."

Now, if the advertiser mentions the down tions the down payment, he must also mention the monthly payment and the interest rate. Tell all or tell nothing! You may advertise the selling price, or terms like "low down any transaction,

payment" or "easy terms". But when it comes to the big three—down payment, interest rate or monthly payment—if you mention one you have to tell all three. all three.

The obvious reason is so buyers can't be misled by an ad that offers $2,000 down payment—and then finding out that the monthly payments are extremely high.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at EARLY REAL ESTATE, 60 Main St., Bethel. Phone: 824-2122, 824-2579. We're here to help!
